Dear Friends,

Are you a little tired? How about just plain exhausted? That is what I am hearing from people who are growing weary listening to the news cycle and living through a second year of pandemic fatigue. Feelings of helplessness and lack of agency are one of the results of the times in which we live.

How do we harness these natural human reactions and transform them into something positive and productive? One way is to look at what you do best and then unleash that to address a problem.

We were fortunate enough to do that twice last year. We asked ourselves how ECE could productively respond to the COVID pandemic. An obvious choice was to support foreign-educated healthcare workers as they sought employment and professional licensure. As a result, we launched the ECE® Aid Healthcare Response. ECE set up a special program and contributed funds to assist healthcare workers seeking evaluation reports through ECE® Aid.

Similarly, as the humanitarian crisis was reaching a critical point in Afghanistan, we launched the Afghanistan Emergency Response. In addition to providing funds for ECE® Aid reports for Afghanistan refugees, we are joining forces with other refugee advocates to highlight the importance of appropriate recognition of earned educational qualifications in the successful placement of refugees in their new homes.

After five years of providing free evaluation reports for foreign-educated people in need through ECE® Aid, we know that appropriate recognition of educational achievement is making a difference.

We share our energy and our hope with you.

Thank you for supporting ECE® Aid through your interest and actions.

Margit Schatzman, ECE® President
ECE® Aid turned five years old in August 2021. We are so grateful to all those who continue to support ECE® Aid and help us assist as many people in need as we can.

We were also thrilled to announce in 2021 that we officially reached over 500 total ECE® Aid recipients since 2016. This achievement signifies the continuing importance of supporting refugees and other displaced people in their pursuit of further education and meaningful employment in the U.S.

Think about the positive results achieved through ECE® Aid that cannot be measured. Access to education and better jobs in the U.S. do not just affect the individual. By providing free credential evaluation reports to displaced people, ECE® Aid recipients can better provide for their families and their communities at home and abroad. In turn, the positive ripple effects could end up transforming generations of family members and ultimately, society itself.
Since 2004, hundreds of Nigerian students have entered the Opportunity Funds Program through EducationUSA. Like those before him, recent Nigerian high school graduate Victor was also looking for an opportunity to study in the U.S. After contacting EducationUSA offices in Lagos, Victor was able to work with an advisor who reached out to ECE® Aid for assistance in preparing an evaluation report.

“I am an aspiring U.S. undergraduate student currently residing in Nigeria, and the experience of using ECE was a great one. An understanding evaluation company who are ready to help people globally to ensure their [academic credential] conversion is done.”

Victor was able to experience first-hand the care and flexibility ECE provides in working one-on-one with prospective students.

“I had a delay in getting my secondary examination results and I couldn’t meet the deadline for submission to ECE. However, after the results got to me, ECE was ready to assist me. All thanks to ECE, I had a free ECE® Aid evaluation of my secondary examination results.”

We wish Victor the very best of luck with his undergraduate studies in the U.S.

ECE® Aid donor sources

Past & present ECE® customers, staff, board of directors, & friends of ECE continue to keep ECE® Aid in a sound financial position.
At the beginning of 2021, we all saw how fragile a country’s healthcare system can be in a crisis. From New York City to India, we asked ourselves at ECE, “What can we do to help?”

As an organization, ECE decided we could use our expertise to help more people enter the healthcare field by donating our services through ECE® Aid.

Working with our existing ECE® Aid Participating Institutions, ECE funded the donation of 25 fee waivers for refugees and immigrants with overseas education that will help them enter the U.S. healthcare sector.

In response to the instability of what happened in Afghanistan in 2021, ECE began by donating 25 fee waivers through our ECE® Aid participants to newly displaced Afghan refugees. In late 2021 we offered an additional 30 fee waivers to those being resettled from military bases in the U.S.

These fee waivers were also funded directly by ECE. As the situation continues to unfold in Afghanistan, and as more people are resettled in the U.S., we continue to make every effort to assist as many people of forced displacement as we can.
